

Working Bibliography on the Vitality & Value of Short/Mid-Term Missions.

(with thanks to Jessica Hayson, at GoCorps)

- Ahrend, T. (2010). In This Generation. Colorado Springs, CO: Dawson Media.
- Beers, S. T. (2001). The effects of study abroad/mission trips on the faith development of college students. Growth: The Journal of the Association for Christians in Student Development, 1, 83-107.
- Howell, B. M. (2009). Mission to nowhere: Putting short-term missions into context. International Bulletin of Missionary Research, 33(4), 206-211.
- McDonough, D. P., & Peterson, R. P. (1999). Can short-term mission really create long-term career missionaries? Minneapolis, MN: STEM Ministries.
- Olson, S. (2000, January). "Mobilizing workers for the 21st Century." Missions Frontiers Bulletin.
- Priest, R., & Howell, B. (2013). "Introduction: Theme Issue on Short Term Missions." Missiology: An International Review, 41 (2), 124-129.
- Priest, R., & Priest, J. P. (2008). "They see everything and understand nothing": Short-Term Mission and Service Learning. Missiology: An International Review, 36(1), 53-73.
- Price, M. J. (2013). "Undergraduate Perceptions of Vocational Calling into Missions and Ministry." Missiology: An International Review, 41 (1), 87-96.
- Richardson, R. (2013). Emerging adults and the future of missions. International Bulletin of Missionary Research, 37(2), 79-84.
- Tuttle, K. A. (2000). The effects of short-term mission experiences on college students' spiritual growth and maturity. Christian Education Journal, 4(2), 123.
- Wuthnow, R., & Offutt, S. (2008). "Transnational Religious Connections." Sociology of Religion. 69 (2), 209-232.

Annotated Working Bibliography of Web Resources for Training & Equipping Mid-Term Workers into Becoming Career Workers.

The Center for Intercultural Training: <http://cit-online.org/>

An intensive, block schedule, residential training center providing pre-field and post-field training and debrief, as well as training in language acquisition.

Ethnos360 Bible Institute <https://ethnos360.org/training/ethnos360-bible-institute>

A ministry of Ethnos360 (formerly New Tribes Mission), a two-year, residential Bible Institute providing two years of training in Bible and Theology, with an emphasis upon application to church planting (an excellent example of more traditional and established pre-field training).

GoCorps: <https://gocorps.org/>

This organization recruits two-year workers from college campuses across the country for the organizations that partner with them, training them and coaching them through the support-raising process while also strategically assisting the young adults in paying off their students loans with matching grants upon completion of their mid-term commitments.

Grow2Serve: <https://grow2serve.net/>

A ministry of South Suburban Evangelical Free Church, Grow2Serve seeks to extend training and equipping ministries through distance learning.

Institute of Strategic Languages and Cultures:

<http://www.strategiclanguages.org/>

An intensive residential language institute working under the auspices of Moody Bible Institute at their Spokane Campus, focused upon Arabic, Chinese, and Russian.

MissionNext: <https://finishers.missionnext.org/en/home/>

This organization seeks to match ministry opportunities with those seeking to go: a "career finder" for the mission community.

Support Raising Solutions: <https://supportraisingsolutions.org/>

An organization that trains and coaches individuals, going out under the auspices of other organizations, in support raising strategies in the North American context.